Yes Chris, but amature radio is not guaranteed by the constitution. That makes it simpler to get rid of them.

I totally agree IF you restrict the comment to below 50 MHz and some FM.

I almost blew off ham radio until I made some contacts on 6m and 2m SSB.
I'm also impressed at the civility on 432 MHz.

I must say that I'm not in a metropolitan area, nor can I easily hear the nearest big city (Denver) on the bands mentioned.

Come on up!

To: info-hams@ucsd.edu

I'd like to post this to see what you all out there in radio/net-land think and see if anyone has any ideas about what to do.

In my home town, where my Dad and Mom, both hams live there is a group of bootleggers using 148.00Mhz. It started with one No-coder who must have thought it was fun to talk on fm. He told his cb'er friends about it. They started to buy rigs too. Now there is around 10 to 15 people, guys, wives, little kids, all hanging out on 148.00. They yak away, never identifying, because only one of them has a license. They cuss and swear and joke about getting away with talking without a license. Every now and then one of them makes a mistake and transmits on the local repeater for one transmission, then quickly moves back to 148.00 to talk to his/her buddies.

The local hams have contacted the FCC field office for the area many many times. At first the engineer in charge said he couldn't do anything about it at all, he was too busy and understaffed and underbudgeted. After many more calls and complaints, he actually drove out to the community and listened in. Yep, they were there, doing just what the locals said, alright. Too bad. In fact, the engineer told the locals that they better be careful, these people might retaliate on the local hams for turning them in. The League has been asked for help, the Official Observer people have been informed, but so far, nothing has been done. The local hams have tape recordings by the dozen, they know exactly who these people are, where they live, where they work, the few who actually do work, etc. Still, the FCC nor the League will or can do anything about it.

Now, I ask you, if these people can do this with impunity, why the heck should the rest of us EVER worry about iding on time, or saying a cuss word now and then, or even bother getting a license at all.

Oh yeah, I forgot, one of them is using a call that is assigned to a guy who lives in St. Louis, which is a long way from here and he ain't the guy from St. Louis.

This whole thing makes me sick, and my folks and the rest of the ham community in the area are really ticked. Wouldn't you be, too?

Now, what should they/we do about this situation. Does anyone have any kind of connection with the FCC? Is there anyone out there who gives a damn?

Help!

Please add $3 to cover shipping and handling on 1st game, $1 each additional game. I will send the disk(s) that you request by priority mail (2 days or less to get to you) Please don't ask me to look up such & such about game x or y, as I don't have time to do your research for you. I assume that if you are interested, you already know pretty much what the game is about. If you need more info about the game, I suggest downloading an issue of GameBytes Magazine, which gives good reviews for a lot of them. You can find Gamebytes at ftp.uml.edu, under Games, in the Game_Bytes subdirectory. I am studying for finals, and will look at my e-mail again in about a week. If you have responded, I will write back and tell you whether or not you were the first person to ask for a game. Then you can send me the check, (if you were lucky enough to be first) and I will send you the game. It's as simple as that.

Thanks!

THE BIG, huge meteor headed toward the Earth. Could nothing stop it? Maybe Bob could. He was suddenly on top of the meteor--through some kind of space warp or something. "Go, Bob, go!" yelled one of the generals. "Give me that!" said the big guy general as he took the microphone away. "Listen, Bob," he said. "You've got to steer that meteor away from Earth."
"Yes, but how?" thought Bob. Then he got an idea. Right next to him there was a steering wheel sticking out of the meteor.

Huh?

I never said you can't use the patch for whatever you want to use the patch for. I merely asked why anyone would WANT to use the patch to make personal appointments.

I'm not a channel-cop. In fact I'm not even close to being one. As

POLICE AMATEUR RADIO TEAM (PART) OF WESTFORD ANNOUNCEMENT
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CONTACT: Terry Stader, KA8SCP
Tel: (508) 692-2069

The Police Amateur Radio Team (PART) of Westford, MA is once again providing the communications for the Tour de Lowell Citizen's bike races on Sunday, June 12, 1994. We have counted on many of the ham radio operators volunteers for previous years and again are asking for your help. The Lowell Sun, sponsor of the race, took a year off last year... but are starting up the annual event again this year!

The race runs from 8:30 AM until about 11 AM and is 30 miles long travelling through towns in Massachusetts (Lowell and Dracut) and New Hampshire (Windham and Pelham). We will be getting together at about 7:30 AM. We'll be meeting in downtown Lowell for assignment of station location throughout the route to provide "some" traffic control as well as safety operations. We need at least 25 hams or more to safely run this net. So anyone is welcome to join us.

If you would like to help us out this year... you are invited to inquire or send me your information about how I may contact you to any of the below listed addresses. All you need is a 2 meter ht (although there will be some 440 cross-band activity for some of the remotes) and a little time Sunday morning.

Please let me know if you would like more information or would like to just say yes!

To: info-hams@ucsd.edu

In my community one of the local repeaters has been plagued by an individual or individuals who is causing willful interference with others by constantly kerchunking the repeater and also using DTMF tones when others are on the air. This appears to be a willful attempt to disrupt communications. I am looking for any insights that people may have regarding the psychopathology of people who engage in this behavior. Any insights or experience that people on the net have had with these individuals would be most welcome. When people have been caught were they well known and what was the motivation. Your input may help us stop this illegal operation.
